

The background of the image is a textured wall with peeling paint. The colors are a mix of light beige, off-white, and various shades of red and orange, ranging from a pale pink to a deep, dark terracotta. The paint is cracked and flaking, creating a rough, aged appearance. The lighting is somewhat uneven, with darker areas in the center and lighter areas towards the top and bottom edges.

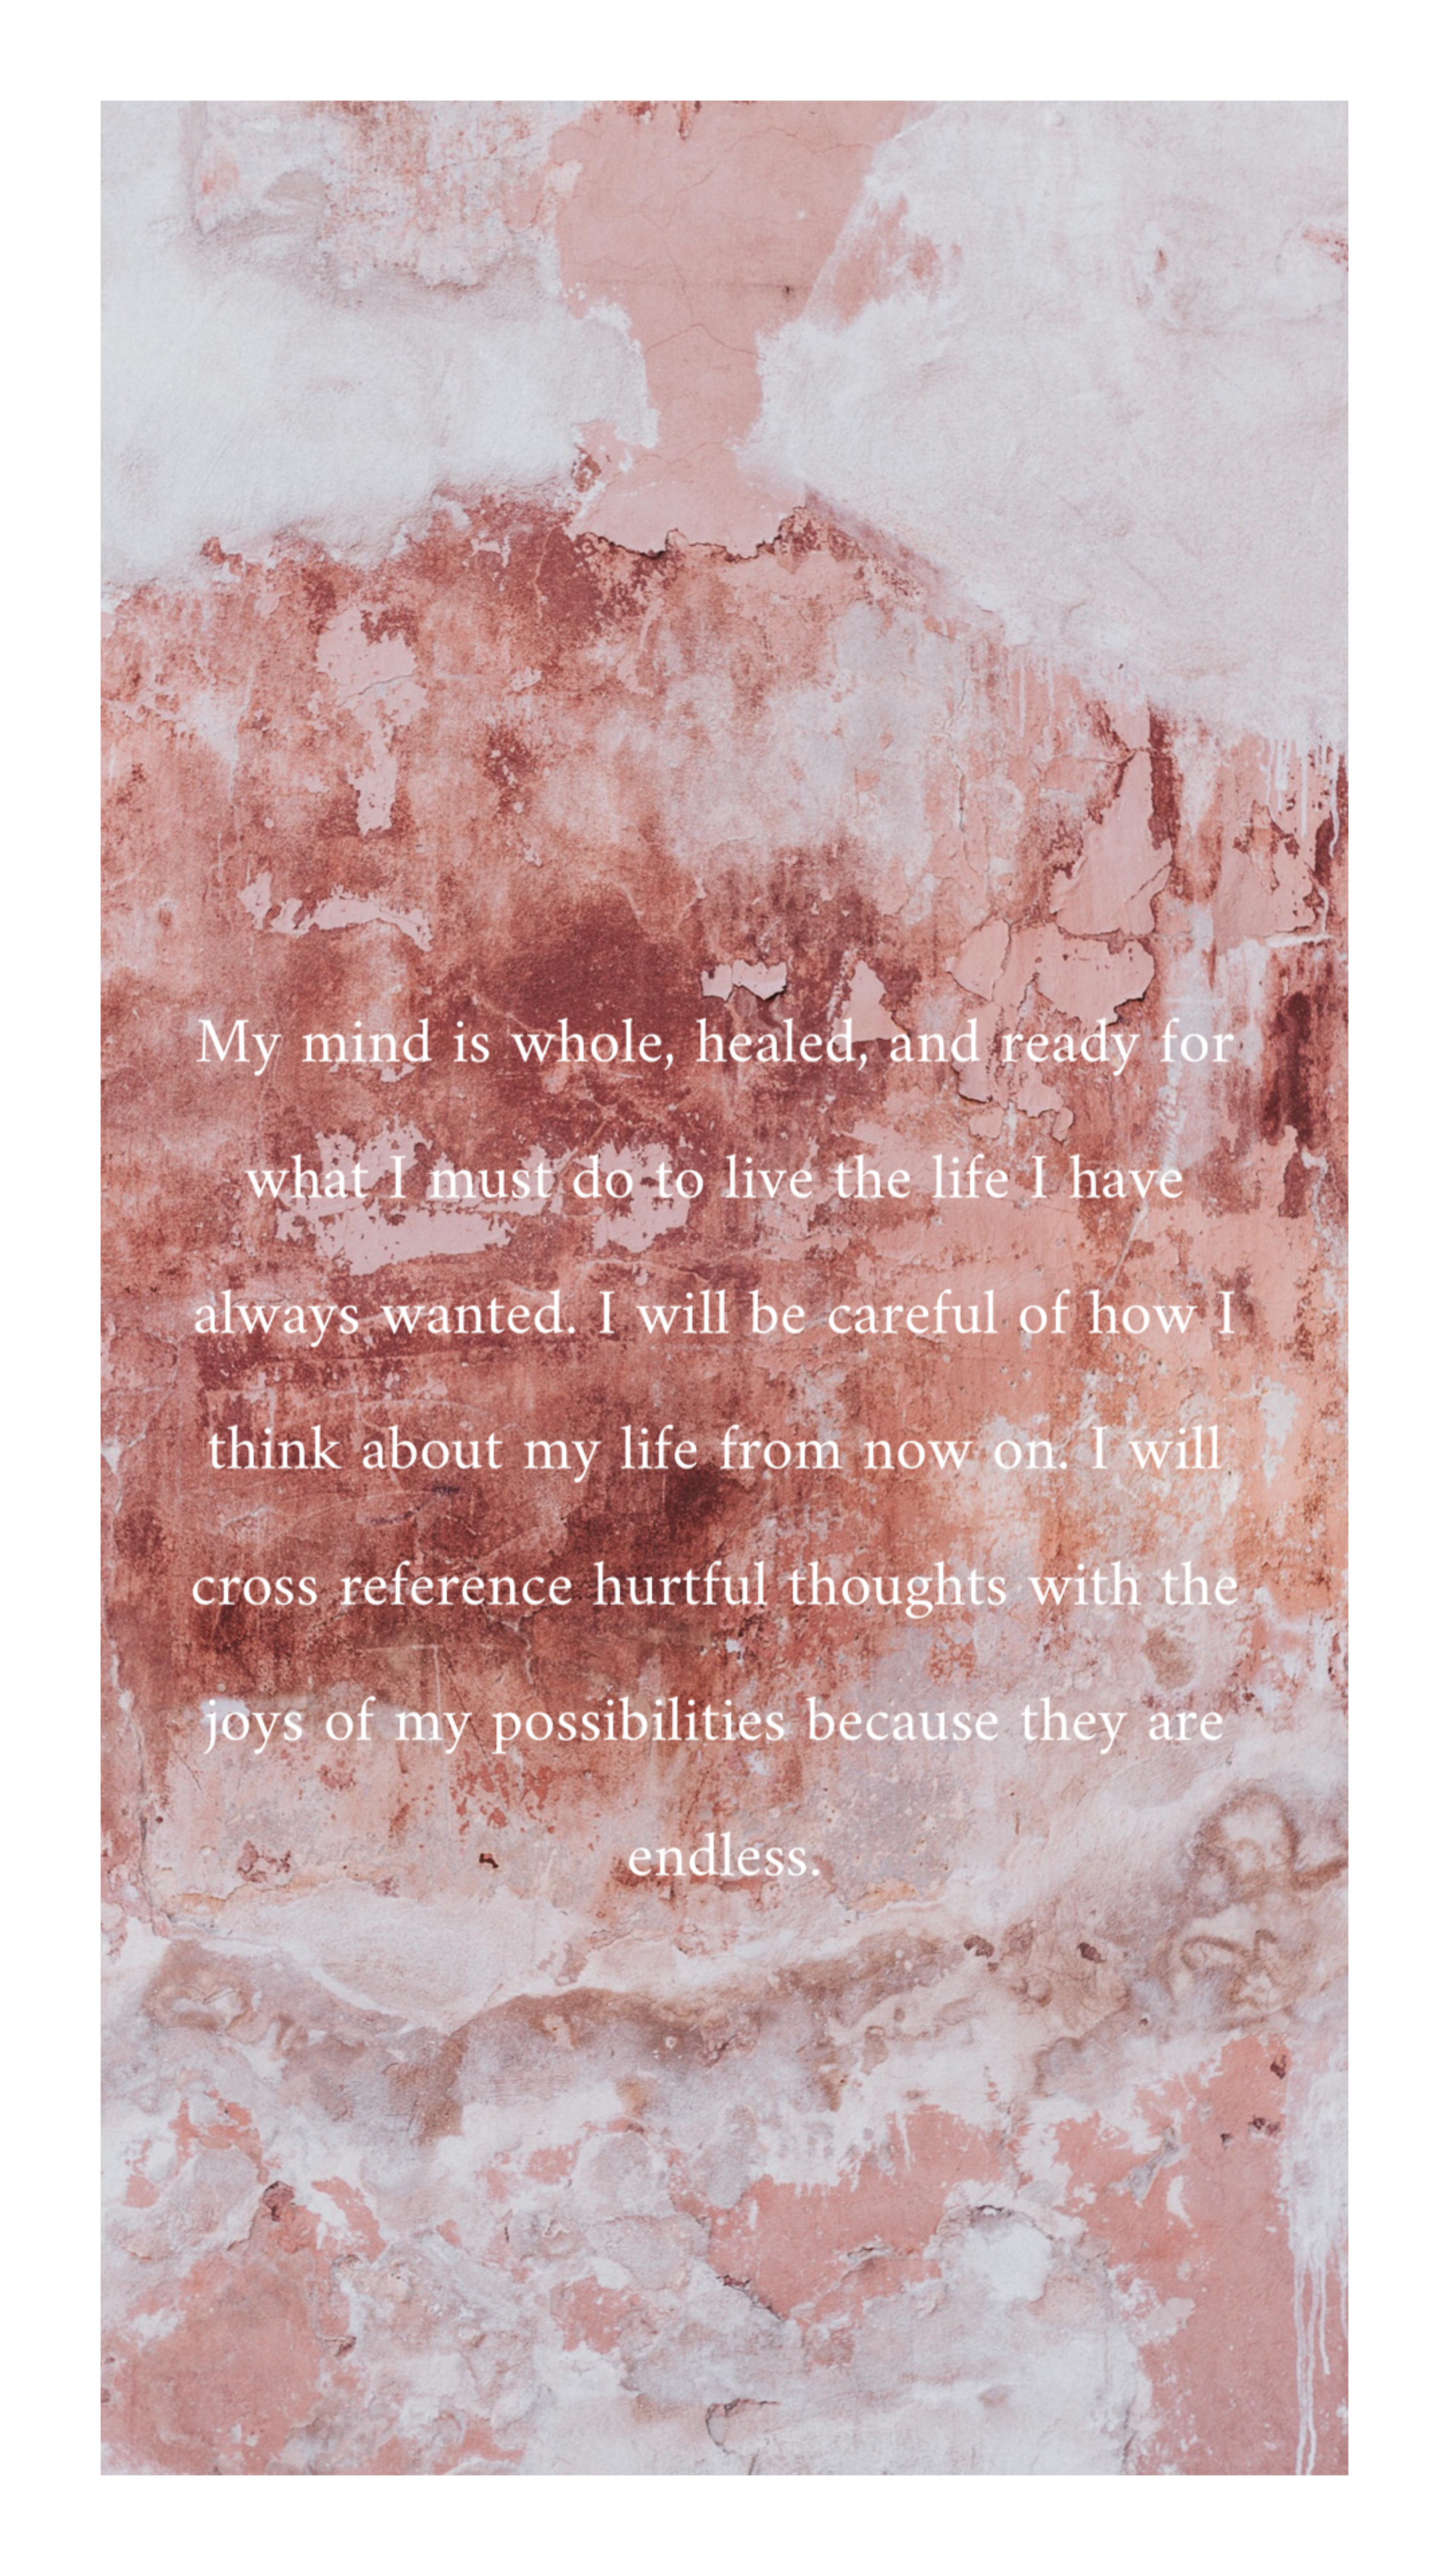

I am enough.

Fear has no hold over me and will no longer stifle me from reaching my highest best self. I can do anything I set my mind to do. I am free to live, dream, and conquer all that is within me.

I will experience life as I see it in my dreams. Rejection cannot hold me back; it can only propel me to unleash my resiliency and perseverance like a mighty force upon this earth. I will take all the negative energy hovering around the plans to stop me and use that to climb higher than ever before.

My mind is whole, healed, and ready for what I must do to live the life I have always wanted. I will be careful of how I think about my life from now on. I will cross reference hurtful thoughts with the joys of my possibilities because they are endless.

Everything I put my hands to do will prosper. My effort yields one hundred-fold results every time. There will be no mountain that I cannot conquer, no fight that I cannot win, no victory that is no already mine

